

Barefoot in the Park Character Descriptions

Cori Bratter: Female, 20-30. Corie is a free-spirited, energetic young woman who is deeply in love with her husband, Paul. She is optimistic, adventurous, and often acts on impulse, which often leads to entertaining but chaotic situations.

Paul Bratter: Male, 20-30. Paul is a more reserved and practical individual, contrasting Corie's spontaneity. He is a lawyer who takes his job seriously and often finds himself caught between his wife's desires for excitement and his own need for stability.

Ethel Banks: Female, mid to late 60s. Ethel is Corie's mother and a widow. She is portrayed as a slightly more conservative and traditional character who often clashes with Corie's carefree nature. However, Ethel's love for her daughter shines through, and she adds a touch of wisdom and humor to the lives around her.

Victor Velasco: Male, mid to late 60s. Victor is the Bratters' eccentric neighbor, who lives in the attic of their apartment building. He is a charming and flamboyant character who adds a dose of humor and excitement to the play. Victor's presence allows for humorous interactions and exposes the contrasts between his extravagant lifestyle and the Bratters' more conventional one.

Harry Pepper: Male, any adult age. Harry is the Bratters' telephone repairman who ends up becoming entangled in their lives. He is a friendly and down-to-earth character who provides some comedic relief and adds an element of surprise to the storyline.
